

ABSTRACT

A power amplifier for use in a mobile handset includes an amplifying transistor, a bias circuit including a bias transistor, the bias circuit providing a bias current to bias the amplifying transistor, and a bias current control circuit, responsive to fluctuation in a reference voltage and variation in temperature, for adjusting the bias current to control an operation current of the amplifying transistor.

10